

Nicholas Bergan

Economics Instructor and Course Developer

As an educator I provide students with a competitive edge using current events in the market economy while having students apply their experiences as well as life situations to economic concepts. In my experience, both in academia and in business, students or clients learn through different methods but have the greatest learning experience happens when you incorporate collaborative activities.

As a course developer, I integrate current events and up to date technology. For example, providing students with instructional lecture videos on economic concepts.
