Online Course

CLASS MEETINGS: All online; no face-to-face except for office time/tutoring

INSTRUCTOR: Matthew Raines, Professor; mraines1@com.edu, Please leave a callback number if I do not answer in person.

The Fine Arts Administrative Assistant, is usually available during business hours at 409-933-8943. You may use the D2L messaging system or my email listed above.

Communicating with your instructor: ALL electronic communication with the instructor must be through your COM email. Due to FERPA restrictions, faculty cannot share any information about performance in the class through other electronic means.

Generally, I answer all inquiries within 48 hours or sooner, but if you email or call on Friday-Sunday, I may be occasionally out of town performing or teaching a workshop in the real world (and away from the virtual one) until Monday. Please use the “Messages” feature in D2L to communicate. The address given above is only in case D2L is not functioning. Phone calls are last resort if all others are down (this is an online course, after all), but remember I always check D2L first.

OFFICE: Fine Arts F-123

STUDENT (OFFICE) HOURS: Appointments during scheduled hours (or at other times) are encouraged so that time can be devoted to each student individually. The following hours may be revised during the first week after private students are scheduled and occasionally due to performances; please note announcements on my office bulletin board and messages in D2L where I will inform the class.

I can be available Monday, Tuesday, or Thursday 7-8:00 p.m. email me to set up an appointment and I will be glad to help you.

TEXT (Required): Listen, 9th Edition, Joseph Kerman and Gary Tomlinson, published by W. W. Norton (Note: previous editions of this text are by another publisher and will no longer give you access to the course site. Also note there is a new edition to this book, but Norton has agreed to open up the 9th edition and continue to allow us to use it. There may be a slight delay at the beginning of the course. Your patience is appreciated.)

IMPORTANT: You will need the student set number I provide in the Read Me First and my introductory email, along with a code from Norton to get to the online quizzes!

You can choose your option; no matter what you will need access to the publisher's Inquizitive site to do the majority of the coursework, especially the quizzes. The 3rd option is highly recommended while we are away from campus and you would have to wait on delivery:

1. Paperback with access to Inquizitive
2. 3-hole punch with access to Inquizitive
3. Ebook with access to Inquizitive: purchased at <https://digital.wwnorton.com/Listen9>

There are bound to be a few mistakes here and there in the text. Please let me know of any problems you encounter so I can try to correct them and/or compensate your grades.

COURSE DESCRIPTION/BENEFITS: This course is designed for students with no previous training in music who wish to explore the meaning and forms of music: classical, romantic, contemporary, jazz, folk, and pop. The emphasis is on learning how to listen to and appreciate music. Attendance at three out-of-class concerts is required. Out-of-class listening is required. May be used for fine art credit.

Benefits: In a nutshell, we will be listening to a variety of great music while developing listening skills and vocabulary for increased understanding and enjoyment. This is an academic class with specific assignments and goals, yet you may very well find it more fun than work – after all, who doesn't love music?

This course will introduce the nonmusic major to (1) musical analysis, (2) a summary of the historical development of European musical heritage, (3) American music, and (4) the world's cultural diversity as seen through music.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS: Reading and quiz assignments will be due approximately twice weekly. Don't panic, you can get way ahead and many finish this course early. The chapters are short, and so are the quizzes. Discussions are easy to do but designed to be thought-provoking and interactive. Do not panic if you get behind and catch up! I am doing something that students told me worked well: if you notice the available dates of the assessments, you will see that they are all open until a specific time during the last week, but please go by the Calendar because even though I do not count off for being late, if you get behind there will be no extensions beyond that final date—and no incompletes for this course.

1. Read your textbook whether hard copy or online. If you are really in a hurry during part of the course, focus on underlined terms and major headings. Be sure to read the biographies along the way! Also, you will really need to listen (hey, that's the title of your book!) since even some of the reading quiz questions will make no sense to you otherwise. Three hours per week is often more than sufficient for doing all the coursework, but naturally, this varies according to your reading/writing levels and prior music experience.

2. When you are ready, take the graded Listening/Reading Quizzes by clicking on the Inquizitive icon at Norton digital (these are like games you play and you can keep going until your score is what you want!), and try to go by the Calendar schedule. If you get behind, catch up by the final week or you will forfeit grades!

3. Complete the online Discussions, including responding to your classmates as directed.

4. Attend three concerts and write reports on them. You'll find a section devoted to this project below in your syllabus.

SPECIAL NOTE: The instructor reserves the right to make changes to the syllabus during the semester to make things clearer or to add additional opportunities for points but will notify the class in such cases.

CONCERT REPORTS: Three are required, and from concerts that actually take place during the semester. You can still possibly make an A if you only attend one or two, so there are no exceptions granted. You can often find free holiday concerts throughout the year if you look, and it shouldn't be difficult to find ones that match your own interests. You can find some Concert Report Guidelines below and also in the Concerts section of the D2L course, and turn them in right there. If you are unable to attend, you might still get a B. But you can go enjoy yourself and potentially get an A for it—what a bargain!

GUIDELINES: The reports should be 1-2 pages double-spaced with a font of 12-13, and should be sent through the Concerts assignment area no later than noon on the calendar due date. Refer to at least two selections by title/composer, time and place, names of venue/performers, your reaction, and description of audience (dress, behavior, reaction, etc.). If I cannot open the file, I cannot grade your report, so please send as Word attachments or else just paste into your email text. Doing both to be double sure is best.

Your reports will be scanned for originality, so do not copy/paste or you'll get an F! (Credited quotes are fine.) For assistance in researching your reports, you may find the Virtual Librarian very helpful in finding resources in the COM Library and beyond. You'll find a link to the COM Library's Virtual Librarian page under Web Resources in the COM Resources folder. Remember that plagiarized reports (very easy to catch and prove) are grounds for serious action!

The Speaking, Reading and Writing Center provides free tutoring services to students, staff and faculty seeking assistance for writing, reading and oral presentations for academic and non-academic assignments/projects. The center provides face-to-face and online tutoring sessions in a welcoming environment.

EXTRA CREDIT: I am often asked if there is extra credit given. In response to student demand, I have redesigned the grading formula to allow the opportunity to gain extra quiz points! There are sections interspersed throughout your e-book called "Global Perspectives." The GP Inquiritives are now built-in, so if you get a 100 on the chapters where these are included you automatically get some extra points.

Those students wishing to receive Honors Program credit may consult with me to fill out an honors contract.

METHODS OF EVALUATION: A variety of means to evaluate student performance is employed, such as discussion participation, written reports, and quizzes/exams on both reading and listening materials.

GRADING FORMULA/SCALE: As described above, you will be evaluated on work in listening/reading quizzes, discussions, and reports.

70% Quizzes – over text and listening examples. Listening Quizzes are of course different from Reading Quizzes; a few chapters have no listening required and so you will have just one quiz then. Your semester quiz grade is calculated from a total of all points. (I will add points to compensate for any questions that everyone misses due to any mistakes made by the publisher or me, plus the entire class will be curved if necessary to create a perfect total by the top student or students.)

15% Discussion participation (0-5 points each discussion)

15% Concert reports - 3 live concerts, at least one of which must be “art music.” I will inform the class from time to time of on-campus performances, which are always free. Remember to follow the format above as well as the guidelines provided in the Student Resources section from the course Homepage. Each report receives 0-5 points.

NO FINAL EXAM!!

GRADING SCALE

90-100=A, 80-89=B, 70-79=C, 60-69=D, 0-59=F

- A Superior achievement of course objectives.
- B Outstanding achievement of course objectives.
- C Achievement of minimum course objectives. (Not recommended in your major!)
- D Marginal achievement of course objectives.
- F Failure to achieve course objectives.
- W Withdrawal on or before the “W” date as specified in the College Calendar.*

NOTE: This instructor regrettably does not award incompletes. You will have to enroll again and start over if you don’t finish.

*For more information, go to this semester’s college schedule. It is your responsibility to withdraw from the course officially by contacting Admissions and completing the necessary paperwork.

MAKE-UP/LATE WORK: The final due date is exactly that: final. Incompletes are not given in this course. Work completed after the final deadline will not count. Do not wait until late in the semester to “catch up” since you may encounter difficulties that we will not have enough time to work through together.

COURSE OUTLINE:

Note: The following is a general outline of the schedule as planned. Some adjustments may be made during the course of each semester according to needs of the class, weather closings, holidays, etc. Consult the Calendar for up-to-date changes that will be posted there if needed.
