Required Textbook: No textbook is required for this course. Books and magazines in an extensive ceramics/sculpture office library will be available as a resource during class and office hours. For this class you will keep a sketchbook that gathers the written and verbal information given in class as well as your drawings and research to develop ideas for each assignment. Please use a 3 ringed binder for your sketchbook. You can organize your sketchbook more easily with that format. Your sketchbook should be clearly organized and grouped by projects. If you submit a sketchbook in which the pages are loose and unorganized it will not be graded. You should think of your sketchbook as a textbook you write for the course and needs to be complete to satisfy the 10% it counts towards your grade.

Course Description: An introduction to ceramics processes through the study of basic materials and techniques. The course focuses on hand building, the potter's wheel, and glazing and firing procedures. Health, safety, and environmental concerns related to the arts will also be addressed.

Course requirements: Students must be prepared, attend class, and fully participate in not only the fabrication of personal works but be part of the active dialogue between their peers and professor. Students will do research and idea development for each assignment. Class participants will also discuss their work and the works of others using the objectives given for each project.

Determination of Course Grade/90-100 points is an A, 80-89 points is a B, 70-79 points is a C, 60-69 points is a D and below 60 points is a F.
