Required Textbook: No textbook is required for this course. Books and magazines in an extensive ceramics/sculpture office library will be available as a resource during class and office hours. For this class you will keep a sketchbook that gathers the written and verbal information given in class as well as your drawings and research to develop ideas for each assignment. Please use a 3 ringed binder for your sketchbook. You can organize your sketchbook more easily with that format. Your sketchbook should be clearly organized and grouped by projects. If you submit a sketchbook in which the pages are loose and unorganized it will not be graded. You should think of your sketchbook as a textbook you write for the course and needs to be complete to satisfy the 10% it counts towards your grade.

Course Description: A further study of ceramics processes through the investigation of materials and techniques building on what was introduced in Ceramics 1. The course focuses on hand building, the potter's wheel, mold making and glazing and firing procedures. Health, safety, and environmental concerns related to the arts will also be addressed.

Course requirements: Students must be prepared, attend class, and fully participate in not only the fabrication of personal works but be part of the active dialogue between their peers and professor. Students will do research and idea development for each assignment. Class participants will also discuss their works and the works of others using the objectives given for each project.

A request for a change of grade is a formal request and must be made within six months of the grade assignment. Directions for filing an appeal can be found in the student handbook <https://www.com.edu/student-services/student-handbook.html>. An appeal will not be considered because of general dissatisfaction with a grade, penalty, or outcome of a course. Disagreement with the instructor's professional judgment of the quality of the student's work and performance is also not an admissible basis for a grade appeal.
