Course Description:

Intensive study of and practice in writing processes, from invention and researching to drafting, revising, and editing, both individually and collaboratively. Emphasis on effective rhetorical choices, including audience, purpose, arrangement, and style. Focus on writing the academic essay as a vehicle for learning, communicating and critical analysis. Prerequisites: TSIA2 945-990 ELAR/CRC test AND 5 or higher on Essay OR 910-955 on CRC with 506 on Diagnostic Test + 5 or higher on Essay, or IRW 0320 with a grade of "C" or better.

Course requirements:

Essays: Students will write a short, diagnostic essay with minimal instruction or guidance from the instructor. This assignment is used to assess each student's current skills as a writer and to identify areas for improvement. Major essays range from 2-5 pages in length, and will build on your skills and ideas over the course of the semester. For each essay assignment, students will submit prewriting, a preliminary draft, and participate in a peer review activity (each worth 10% of the total assignment).

Journals: Students will write 1-2 page journal entries, consisting of reflections and thoughts generated from the readings, class discussions, and other assigned topics. Although students have a lot of liberty in completing the journal assignments, they should not use the journals to vent about the class or other students. Please remain professional and use common sense.

Discussions: Discussions are an important way to gauge student participation and keep the class engaged and interactive, particularly in an online class. Discussions provide a platform for students to share ideas and interpretations with other classmates and the instructor. Because we do not meet in a face-to-face environment, discussions are graded as a way to encourage and objectively measure student participation. You should avoid using outside sources (such as websites) to complete discussions, since I am interested in your thoughts and analysis, but if you do use a source, you should, of course, give credit with proper citations.

Quizzes & Exams: This course has three quizzes (over the writing process, the plagiarism, and research) and one final exam.

Late Work, Make-Up, and Extra-Credit Policy:

If the last two and a half years have taught me anything as a teacher, it is that life happens. Sometimes, deadlines are missed because of one reason or another. I do not believe that students should be penalized for that. I have deadlines and students should try to adhere to those deadlines as closely as possible. I will, however, not take any points off for late essays or journal assignments. However, discussion boards are meant to simulate the discussion and classroom interaction that we would have if we were in a face-to-face class. Therefore, discussions cannot be submitted late and counted for credit. There may be extra credit assignments given throughout the semester, but they are at the instructor's discretion.

Attendance Policy:

Regular class participation is expected; a student cannot expect to pass this online class without participating in discussions and other assignments on a regular basis. Students are expected to check email at least every other day and to sign on to the class as least four-five times per week to check assignments, take quizzes, and participate in discussions and learning activities. As stated in the COM student handbook, students are required to login to the course for the first time within 48 hours of the beginning of the semester. Students should expect to devote a minimum of three hours to the class each week in terms of D2L participation, just as they would be attending a normal class for three hours each week. This time commitment does not include the time required for reading, researching, completing writing assignments, and otherwise studying for the course. Please be aware that I can check a student's progress (including last sign-on date, items accessed, etc.) through D2L. For the purposes of this online class, "attendance means accessing the class on a regular basis (as indicated above); in addition, activities must be completed or attempted for attendance to be considered meaningful. This online class involves no mandatory face-to-face meetings, field trips, or synchronous online meetings, however you are always free to request a virtual meeting to discuss your progress in the class or to have content questions answered.

Communicating with your instructor: ALL electronic communication with the instructor must be through your COM email. Due to FERPA restrictions, faculty cannot share any information about performance in the class through other electronic means. (Faculty may add additional statement requiring monitoring and communication expectations via D2L or other LMS)

Academic Dishonesty:

Academic dishonesty, such as cheating on exams, is an extremely serious offense and will result in a grade of zero on that exam or other assignment, and the student will be referred to the Office of Student Conduct for the appropriate discipline action. Plagiarism is using someone else's words or ideas and claiming them as your own. Plagiarism is a very serious offense. Plagiarism includes (but is not limited to) paraphrasing someone else's words without giving proper credit, copying directly from a website and pasting it into your paper, or using someone else's words without quotation marks (even if cited). Inadequate paraphrasing may also be construed as plagiarism. Any assignment containing plagiarized material will receive a grade of zero and the student will be referred to the Office of Student Conduct for the appropriate discipline action. The plagiarism and academic dishonesty policy applies to all written work submitted for this class, including tests, journals, quizzes, online forums, and essays. If you use anything from another source, you must document properly using MLA citation standards. Making up quotes or falsifying information will also be construed as academic dishonesty. "Recycling" or reusing your own assignments is not allowed; please ask me if you need guidance on this. Please note that not all papers will necessarily be checked for plagiarism; the decision to check a particular paper for possible plagiarism is made based on my professional judgement and expertise.

Artificial Intelligence Statement:

You may choose to use artificial intelligence tools to help brainstorm for assignments or projects or to revise work you have written. When you submit your assignment, I expect you to clearly attribute what text was generated by the AI tool (e.g., AI-generated text appears in a different colored font, quoted directly in the text, or use an in-text parenthetical citation).

Directions for filing an appeal can be found in the student handbook https://www.com.edu/student-services/docs/Student_Handbook_2023-2024_v2.pdf. An appeal will not be considered because of general dissatisfaction with a grade, penalty, or outcome of a course. Disagreement with the instructor's professional judgment of the quality of the student's work and performance is also not an admissible basis for a grade appeal.
