Drafts are an integral part of this course, are required for all major essay assignments, will elicit instructor comment, and function as the basis for peer review.

Journals are brief (300-500 word) responses to assigned readings. Although they are not formal essays, they must be typed and edited. The instructor will provide specific directions during the semester.

The Final will be a class presentation

Professionalism: Our class will reproduce in many ways a “real-world” work environment and students will be expected to participate professionally in the class. You should arrive on time, meet deadlines, and contribute meaningfully to class discussions. Professionalism also includes collaboration, willing participation in all class activities, and sincere effort to improve your own writing and that of your peers through peer review, revision, and conferencing. In the real world, employees are assigned various tasks outside their core job duties as needed. To reflect this sort of real-world circumstance, all quiz grades, homework, and daily work will be included in this category. Some assignments such as peer reviews or quizzes over key concepts may be weighted more heavily than other assignments. Professional behavior is a cooperative endeavor that affects the entire class, but it will be tied to an individual grade. Many instructors will choose to make the professionalism grade a “silent grade,” one that is not announced until the end of the semester. The reason for a “silent grade” is to avoid unproductive behavior from students in relation to class discussions and activities, behavior such as competing with each other or performing to the instructor.

Late Work, Make-Up, and Extra-Credit Policy:

I DO NOT ACCEPT LATE WORK! The class will reflect a real-world situation; therefore, it should be treated like a job.

Attendance Policy:

Students are required to attend classes. Instructors will not withdraw students for non-attendance, except in developmental courses. Absences in excess of two weeks are to be reported to the Office of Advising Services, along with appropriate recommendations. Departments and faculty may have other attendance policies for their course.

In a regular 16-week semester, 2-3 absences are acceptable. After the third absence, you will lose one letter grade for the course. Please understand that excessive absences will negatively impact your success in the course. This is a hands-on class and most of the content will be delivered in the face-to-face classroom setting. Your attendance and participation are necessary components of the class.

Arriving late and leaving early: A student who is late may be marked absent. A student who leaves class early may be marked absent. Students should track their own late arrivals, early departures, and absences. Students are expected to communicate with the instructor outside of class time if they have any concerns about attendance or punctuality.

Communicating with your instructor: ALL electronic communication with the instructor must be through your COM email. Due to FERPA restrictions, faculty cannot share any information about performance in the class through other electronic means. (Faculty may add additional statement requiring monitoring and communication expectations via D2L or other LMS)
