The RoughWriter's Guide: A Handbook for Writing Well
Dr. Karen Palmer & Dr. Sandi Van Lieu

Course Description: Intensive student of and practice in writing processes, from invention and researching to drafting, revising, and editing, both individually and collaboratively. Emphasis on effective rhetorical choices, including audience, purpose, arrangement, and style. Focus on writing the academic essay as a vehicle for learning, communicating, and critical analysis. Prerequisites: TSIA2 945-990 ELAR/CRC test AND 5 or higher on Essay OR 910-944 on CRC with 5-6 on Diagnostic Test AND 5 or higher on Essay; or IRW 0302 with a grade of “C” or better.

Course requirements:

Essays: Students will write a short, diagnostic essay with minimal instruction or guidance from the instructor. This assignment is used to assess each student’s current skills as a writer and to identify areas for improvement. Major essays range from 2-5 pages in length and will build on your skills and ideas over the course of the semester. For each essay assignment, students will submit prewriting, a preliminary draft, and participate in a peer review activity (each worth 10% of the total assignment).

Journals: Students will write 1–2-page journal entries, consisting of reflections and thoughts generated from the readings, class discussions, and other assigned topics. Although students have a lot of liberty in completing the journal assignments, they should not use the journals to vent about the class or other students. Please remain professional and use common sense.

Discussions: Discussions are an important way to gauge student participation and keep the class engaged and interactive, particularly in an online class. Discussions provide a platform for students to share ideas and interpretations with other classmates and the instructor. Because we do not meet in a face-to-face environment, discussions are graded as a way to encourage and objectively measure student participation. You should avoid using outside sources (such as websites) to complete discussions, since I am interested in your thoughts and analysis, but if you do use a source, you should, of course, give credit with proper citations. I cannot stress this enough. The discussions can be the difference between passing and failing this course. They can be the difference between an A and a B.

Quizzes & Exams: This course has three quizzes (over the writing process, the plagiarism, and research) and one final exam.

Determination of Course Grade/Detailed Grading Formula:

Assignment	Points	Percent of Final Average
Diagnostic Essay	100	10%
Essay 1: Narration	200	20%
Essay 2: Compare & Contrast	200	20%
Essay 3: Argumentation & Persuasion	150	15%
Journals (4 @ 50 points each)	200	20%
Discussions (4 @ 10 points each)	40	4%
Quizzes (3 @ 20 points each)	60	6%
Final Exam	50	5%
	1000	100%

Final grades are determined based on total points earned during the course.

Points Earned	Final Grade
900-1000	A
800-899.99	B
700-799.99	C
600-699.99	D
Fewer than 600	F

Late Work, Make-Up, and Extra-Credit Policy: If the last five years have taught me anything as a teacher, it is that life happens. Sometimes, deadlines are missed because of one reason or another. I do not believe that students should be penalized for that. I have deadlines and students should try to adhere to those deadlines as closely as possible. I will, however, not take any points off for late essays or journal assignments. However, discussion boards are meant to simulate the discussion and classroom interaction that we would have if we were in a face-to-face class. Therefore, discussions cannot be submitted late and counted for credit. There may be extra credit assignments given throughout the semester, but they are at the instructor's discretion.

Attendance Policy: Regular class participation is expected; a student cannot expect to pass this online class without participating in discussions and other assignments on a regular basis. Students are expected to check email at least every other day and to sign on to the class as least four-five times per week to check assignments, take quizzes, and participate in discussions and learning activities. As stated in the COM student handbook, students are required to login to the course for the first time within 48 hours of the beginning of the semester. Students should expect to devote a minimum of three hours to the class each week in terms of D2L participation, just as they would be attending a normal class for three hours each week. This time commitment does not include the time required for reading, researching, completing writing assignments, and otherwise studying for the course. Please be aware that I can check a student’s progress (including last sign-on date, items accessed, etc.) through D2L. For the purposes of this online class, “attendance means accessing the class on a regular basis (as indicated above); in addition, activities must be completed or attempted for attendance to be considered meaningful. This online class involves no mandatory face-to-face meetings, field trips, or synchronous online meetings, however you are always free to request a virtual meeting to discuss your progress in the class or to have content questions answered.

Communicating with your instructor: ALL electronic communication with the instructor must be through your COM email. Due to FERPA restrictions, faculty cannot share any information about performance in the class through other electronic means. (Faculty may add additional statement requiring monitoring and communication expectations via D2L or other LMS)

Academic Dishonesty: Any incident of academic dishonesty will be dealt with in accordance with College policy and the student handbook. Plagiarism is using someone else's words or ideas and claiming them as your own. Plagiarism is a very serious offense. Plagiarism includes (but is not limited to) paraphrasing someone else's words without giving proper credit, copying directly from a website and pasting it into your paper, or using someone else's words without quotation marks (even if cited). If you use anything from another source, you must document properly using MLA citation standards. Making up quotes or falsifying information will also be construed as academic dishonesty. "Recycling" or reusing your own assignments is not allowed; please ask me if you need guidance on this. Please note that not all papers will necessarily be checked for plagiarism; the decision to check a particular paper for possible plagiarism is made based on my professional judgement and expertise.

The use of Artificial Intelligence (AI) tools or services for generating or assisting in the creation of academic work is strictly prohibited. This includes, but is not limited to, the use of AI-based writing services, content creation tools, or any technology designed to produce academic assignments automatically. Any submission found to involve the use of AI tools will be considered a violation of academic integrity and will be subject to the same consequences as plagiarism.

Students are reminded that the responsibility for the originality and authenticity of their work rests solely with them. If there are any questions regarding the use of specific tools or technologies, students are encouraged to seek clarification from the instructor before submitting their assignments.
