Office Hours: Thursday 6-7 (ALWAYS email first)

Student hours and location: Fully Online (asynchronous)

Communicating with your instructor:

ALL electronic communication with the instructor must be through your COM email. Due to FERPA restrictions, faculty cannot share any information about performance in the class through other electronic means.

Generally, I answer all inquiries within 48 hours or sooner, but if you email or call on Friday-Sunday, I may be occasionally out of town performing or teaching a workshop in the real world (and away from the virtual one) until Monday. Please DO NOT use the “Messages” or discussion board features in Blackboard to communicate. Phone calls are last resort if all others are down (this is an online course, after all), but remember I always check Blackboard first.

Required Textbook/Materials:

TEXT (Required): Listen, 9th Edition, Joseph Kerman and Gary Tomlinson, published by W. W. Norton (Note: previous editions of this text are by another publisher and will no longer give you access to the course site.)

IMPORTANT: You will need the student set number I provide in the Read Me First and my introductory email, along with a code from Norton to get to the online quizzes!

You can choose your option; no matter what you will need access to the publisher's Inquizitive site to do the majority of the coursework, especially the quizzes. The 3rd option is highly recommended while we are away from campus and you would have to wait on delivery:

1. Paperback with access to Inquizitive
2. 3-hole punch with access to Inquizitive
3. Ebook with access to Inquizitive: purchased at <https://digital.wwnorton.com/Listen9>

There are bound to be a few mistakes here and there in the text. Please let me know of any problems you encounter so I can try to correct them and/or compensate your grades.

Course Description:

This course is designed for students with no previous training in music that wish to explore the meaning and forms of music: classical, romantic, contemporary, jazz, folk, pop. The emphasis is on learning how to listen to and appreciate music. Attendance at three out-of-class concerts required. Out-of-class listening required. May be used for fine art credit.

Benefits: In a nutshell, we will be listening to a variety of great music while developing listening skills and vocabulary for increased understanding and enjoyment. This is an academic class with specific assignments and goals, yet you may very well find it more fun than work – after all, who doesn't love music?

This course will introduce the non music major to (1) musical analysis, (2) a summary of the historical development of European musical heritage, (3) American music, and (4) the world's cultural diversity as seen through music.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS:

Reading and quiz assignments will be due approximately twice weekly. Don't panic, you can get way ahead and many finish this course early. The chapters are short, and so are the quizzes. Discussions are easy to do, but designed to be thought-provoking and interactive. DO panic if you get behind, and catch up! I am doing something that students told me worked well: if you notice the available dates of the assessments, you will see that they are all open until a specific time during the last week, but please go by the Calendar because even though I do not count off for being late, if you get behind there will be no extensions beyond that final date—and no incompletes for this course.

1. Read your textbook whether hard copy or online. If you are really in a hurry during part of the course, focus on underlined terms and major headings. Be sure to read the biographies along the way! Also, you will really need to listen (hey, that's the title of your book!) since even some of the reading quiz questions will make no sense to you otherwise. Three hours per week is often more than sufficient for doing all the coursework, but naturally this varies according to your reading/writing levels and prior music experience.

2. When you are ready, take the graded Listening/Reading Quizzes by clicking on the Inquizitive icon at Norton digital (these are like games you play and you can keep going until your score is what you want!!), and try to go by the Calendar schedule. If you get behind, catch up by the final week or you will forfeit grades!

3. Complete the online Discussions, including responding to your classmates as directed.

4. Attend three concerts and write reports on them. You'll find a section devoted to this project below in your syllabus.

Course requirements:

Students are expected to work through each course module including reading, journal assignments, discussions, quizzes, and module exams. In addition, students will do one paper (concert report) and a group project (groups to be assigned later in the semester).

Important note: You are not allowed to stop and restart the timed assessments. They MUST be completed in a single sitting.

You are allowed two attempts on each of the quizzes and the higher grade is the one you will receive.

All assessments are timed!

- Quizzes are 45 minutes.
- Module exams are 90 minutes.

You are allowed only one attempt on module exams.

Be prepared for technical issues while taking assessments. If you have a problem with blackboard or your internet you need to contact support and/or myself right away. I will help as best I can. Don't start any timed quiz or exam unless you are certain of a good connection. You should never try to take them on your phone.

Writing in an academic fashion:

When answering questions, journal prompts, or any other kind of writing assignment, you must write as if I do not know the question.

Do not begin any answers with yes or no. You must thoroughly explain your position and support it with examples or facts.

You must use one of two formats. You may number your answers and separate them with a space or you may indent and use paragraph format. Either is acceptable as long as you follow the previous instructions.

It is important to write in an “academic” fashion. Do not use text speak or any kind of short hand. You must use complete sentences, proper grammar, and punctuation. How you speak to your friends is not how you should write. Think of how something might be written in a text book for a college class.

Determination of Course Grade/Detailed Grading Formula:

Grading Formula and Course Requirements:

- 15 Journal Entries and participation in 2 discussions: 25% (Replaced with Listening Quizzes)
Chapter Quizzes 20%

Grading Scale:

90-100 points = A

80-90 points = B

Late Work, Make-Up, and Extra-Credit Policy:

You will be allowed 1 late break for 1 journal entry and 1 unit exam (excluding the Unit exam). Your late break allows you to submit your assignment/exam up to 1 week past the original due date with no penalty. It is your responsibility to email me your decision to use a late break.

- Journal Entries: I will take journal entries up to 1 week past the original due date (excluding Journal #15). For each calendar day the assignment is late, you will lose 2 points from your score.
